

SERVICE CENTRE
YOUTH EMPLOYMENT AGENCIES

NETWORKING KNOWLEDGE. LINKING EXPERIENCE.

We support cooperation across legal spheres
at the transition from school to work.

ABOUT THE SERVICE CENTRE

We have been supporting youth employment agencies with all aspects relating to cooperation across legal spheres since 2020.

We pool specialist information, address key issues, develop key materials, make examples of good practice accessible nationwide and advise youth employment agencies on a wide range of topics.

Collaboration and networking with and between youth employment agencies is at the heart of our work. We also embrace the perspective of all participants by maintaining contact with trade and industry associations, public administration bodies, the academic research sector and further partners.

WHAT ARE YOUTH EMPLOYMENT AGENCIES?

A multitude of advisory and support provision offered by various partners is in place to assist young people along the pathway from school to work. Different laws govern who can help with any given problem, and this may lead to confusion. For this reason, employment agencies, job centres and youth welfare services are joining forces to form youth employment agencies in an increasing number of local government areas. Schools and other partners are also frequently involved. Interdisciplinary collaboration takes place across legal spheres in order to aid young people with occupational and social integration. These cooperation alliances may be structured differently depending on the respective circumstances.

NETWORKING.
IMPETUS.
TRANSFER.

THE TOPICS

We deal with the issues which affect the work of youth employment agencies at a local level:

- How can the work alliances shape and pursue the further development of their own youth employment agency?
- How can they structure cooperation with further partners?
- What needs arise as a result of the life situations faced by young people?
- What forms of consultancy are they seeking to offer?
- How can they conduct case work together?

We collate responses that have emerged from practice to address these questions and other issues. We make various possible solutions available.
